Photo Impression 6.1.Q: Parse command-line parameters with spaces I'd like to parse command-line parameters using a function like this one (in C): const char *arg_get(const char *name, const char *delim) { if (argc == 1) return ""; if (!*name) return ""; size_t len = strlen(name); char *arg = malloc(len + 1); strcpy(arg, name); char *p = strchr(arg,'); if (p) *p = '\0'; const char *start = NULL; const char *end = NULL; char *part = malloc(1); while (*p && (start = strchr(arg, *p),!end)) { *part = *p; ++p; ++part; } *p = '\0'; if (start) { while ((end = strchr(start, delim))) end[0] = '\0'; } return part; } It works well except if the parameter is passed with a space in it, then the last argument wins. I can work around that by adding an option to 3ef4e8ef8d
