Lanshark is a very accessible and efficient piece of software that provides you with all the necessary tools and an appropriate environment for sharing files with other users on the same local area network. Lanshark is a very accessible and efficient piece of software that provides you with all the necessary tools and an appropriate environment for sharing files with other users on the same local area network. You can deploy the application on your computer's system in mere seconds, courtesy to a typical installer and thanks to a untroublesome UI, there's a good chance you'll be able to find your way around this app straight away. Once you launch for the first time, you are greeted by Lanshark's Configuration window. Pick a Hostname, select the shared folder's patch and the place where files will be downloaded to your computer to get started. Simple looks, reliable and novice-accessible tools You'll also notice that there's a nifty search function that allows you to perform searches for specific files on the whole network with next to no effort. Right-click any file, and you'll be able to download it at a location of your choosing immediately. It's worth pointing out that from the same contextual menu, you can also copy the download URL to your computer's clipboard, or change the icon display size. Last but not least, please note that the app also bundles a run-of-the-mill web interface that allows you to perform all of the actions stated above directly within your favorite browser. Not impressive but definitely worthy of your attention To conclude, there's really no reason why you shouldn't give Lanshark a quick try if you're currently looking for an efficient utility for file sharing in your local area network. The app is incredibly lightweight, very easy to deploy, not at all complicated to configure, and best of all it's very intuitive, especially considering it automatically detects other shared media without requiring any intervention on your part. KEYMACRO is a Mac OS X system utility. Features: 1. A key-combo switcher for the entire contents of the Finder windows. You can switch between any two windows, whether they are from the same application or not. 2. Create key-combo shortcuts for Finder windows in the Keyboard preferences. It has also an integrated AppleScript editor. 3. Load your key-combo shortcuts and key-combo switcher into the system's Keyboard preference pane. 4. Create an application and store it in the Launchpad. How to install and use: 1. Open the KEYMACRO preferences and change its settings as desired. 2. Create a shortcut to KEYMACRO from the Finder's Window menu. You can press F3 to load the window list, and press the F3 key repeatedly to cycle through the windows. 3. Copy the KEYMACRO preference file into /Library/Preferences/. For example, if you called the application "KEYMACRO.pref", open Finder, and choose the Go > Go to Folder... command. Enter /Library/Preferences/ and press Return. 4. In the Finder, press Command-I to open the Go to Folder window. Navigate to the folder /Library/Preferences/KEYMACRO.pref, and then press Enter. 5. Open the KEYMACRO.pref file. 6. Place your mouse over the preference pane and press Command-C to copy the content to the clipboard. 7. Launch the Keyboard preference pane. Click the "+" button on the Keyboard preference pane and then paste the content you copied in step 5. 8. Click the "+" button one more time. This time, select Key-combo Switcher for Finder Windows as the application's category. Press Enter. 9. Once you've added the application, select it in the list and press the OK button. 10. Create a new key-combo shortcut from the Keyboard preferences' Keyboards & Modifiers pane. Use the + key to add a new key-combo shortcut. 11. Type in the shortcut you want to create, and press Enter. 12. Click on the file's menu, then select the "Open with..." command and add KEYMACRO.
