Here is the first version of Send to SmugMug Serial Key. It is built with VB.NET and is based on the existing SMSSend Application. What's New: Improved UI Crop Multiply Sketch Modify Red-Eye Fix File Size iOS Support New features: Improved UI Crop Multiply Sketch Modify Red-Eye Fix File Size iOS Support This release includes many bug fixes. I will continue to update it as I find more. For more details, you can read the Release Notes. Bug Fixes: 1. Improved the photo management UI 2. Updated the SKDLookup application with the latest "SmugMug Connected" URL 3. Fixed some minor bugs and improved the UI There is a new member of the SmugMug team that will be helping us further with the application: I am happy to announce that we have hired David Hasler as the head of the Desktop team. David is a very bright and hardworking software developer who has been working with us for the past 5 years on a variety of different applications and tools. With his help we are now able to push our application platform to the next level, while continuing to develop the application and find new ways to make it better. Prior to SmugMug, he was a co-founder and CTO of Qadeo. He also built the iconic ThinkMP3 music player for Windows Mobile, and wrote the QFC media server. I will be working closely with David and the rest of the team to keep the application up-to-date and focused on providing all of you with the best SmugMug experience possible. It has been a long time since I updated this blog, but this time I have good news. Last month I hired Lisa. Lisa is a very smart, creative and hardworking software developer that I met through an online forum. She has been working on our iOS platform and has done a fantastic job so far. I can't wait to share the next step in this project. I've been asked about Xero from time to time, so I thought it's time to give my take on the matter. Here is 77a5ca646e
