The game also includes "Matchday," a mode that gives players the opportunity to create their own live matches, using their own custom teams, goals, kits, stadiums and kits and players. Players can build a match based on the league they are playing, or create a dream world match with a friend that is completely controlled by the players. "We're very happy to work with EA SPORTS again to deliver a technological advancement in matchday gameplay in FIFA 22," said Robyn Smith, Head of Sports & Entertainment at IMG. "By combining motion capture data with the power of the Frostbite engine, the Frostbite Motion Engine, players can create their own custom-made games live on the pitch. We look forward to showcasing FIFA 22's Matchday functionality at this year's E3." FIFA 22 will be available on the Xbox One, PlayStation 4, Xbox 360, and PlayStation 3 on September 28 for $59.99 on Xbox One, $69.99 on PS4, $69.99 on Xbox 360 and $79.99 on PS3. The rapid diagnosis of foot, ankle, knee and hip injuries using the POCUS: a prospective observational study. Rapid diagnosis is an important factor for optimal treatment in patients with soft tissue injuries. The use of ultrasound is superior to clinical examination in the evaluation of an acute soft tissue injury of the musculoskeletal system. Ultrasound can be performed at the bedside and it does not require a trained ultrasound operator. To evaluate the role of point-of-care ultrasound (POCUS) in the diagnosis of foot, ankle, knee and hip injuries and to assess whether the use of POCUS reduces the need for secondary imaging. All patients with soft tissue injuries of the foot, ankle, knee and hip, presenting to a regional hospital between September 2010 and June 2011 were studied. A total of 283 patients were included in this study. The patients were assessed clinically and with ultrasound examination. The diagnosis of the injury was confirmed with radiography (45%), CT (17%) or MRI (38%). The performance of POCUS showed that, in the diagnosis of ankle sprains, 95% had negative or at least suspicious ultrasound findings. The specificity of POCUS was 90% and the sensitivity was 97%. In the diagnosis of ankle dislocation, 95% had negative or at least suspicious ultrasound findings. The specificity of POCUS was 100% and the sensitivity

Features Key:

- Introducing the Immersive Vision Engine, which uses higher resolution textures and volumetric lighting to deliver the most realistic visuals seen in a soccer game.
- Introducing the X-Tech Refereeing System, which provides the most intuitive and balanced refereeing AI in the business.
- Introducing the Adaptive Difficulty System, which uses the players' match performance to determine differences in the difficulty of timed challenges, and rewards greater skill with higher scores
- Introducing the FIFA Ultimate Team system in FIFA 22, where the eponymous rewards management is both an essential part of the gameplay and a key driver of the user experience.
